

HOW DO YOUR SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT PRACTICES MEASURE UP?

FIND OUT WITH A SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT AUDIT REPORT.

Every day, your Service Managers work diligently to meet a wide range of resident repair requests, manage vendors and contractors, and respond to the needs of Property Managers. But despite the best intentions of a well trained team, supply chain management issues may be negatively impacting resident satisfaction and your bottom line.

Daycon Integrated Services is a leading provider of supply chain management solutions to multifamily housing properties. Our no obligation audit of your company's supply chain management practices provides you with a detailed report that answers the following questions:

Do your Service Managers and maintenance teams have the parts and products they need, when they need them, to quickly respond to the needs of residents?

Do current inventory management procedures ensure against overstocked and out-of-stock items that increase costs and require last-minute procurement inefficiencies?

Is the specification of parts and products standardized to ensure optimal cost savings and ease of installation?

Over a one month period, our team of experts will visit three of your portfolio properties, meet with your services teams and conduct an audit of nine different areas of best practice for supply chain management. Your audit report will not only answer the above three questions, it will also provide specific recommendations and estimated savings in time and operating expense. To learn more about getting a supply chain audit report for your properties, contact Harry Feldman at 301.385.4320.

“Daycon embraced the concept of partnering by taking over our supply chain and inventory management functions. The value they create for us is measured in time savings and productivity improvement.”

- Ron Frank, President
Southern Management
Corporation